What do you think about when you hear the word, Integrity? What definitions do you usually see? Why do some people obviously have integrity, while others do not? What builds integrity into a person's life?

When determining those values you wish to embrace as part of your personal development journey, you will ultimately reflect on your own personal spiritual journey. I believe Integrity's cornerstones are those embraced throughout life—absolute honesty, humility, purity, unselfishness, love.

As the above illustration exhibits, every human being has the potential for Integrity to be woven in and throughout their lives. Personal development embodies a wholistic view of life and purpose—your physical wellbeing, soul care (mind, intellect, will, emotions, temperament/personality), and spiritual relationship with God.

A wholistic life foundation is built on a vibrant faith energized by solid integrity. This type of integrity provides a stable ground to stand on, no matter the circumstances. Let's see how integrity is built in you by God. Let's also see how it grows in you.

Integrity begins when you are...

I encourage you to read Proverbs 28 in various bible versions, including the Amplified. This chapter offers valuable contrasts and outcomes between living with integrity and losing it. Let's then now gain insight, showing us potential outcomes verse by verse when integrity is gained and lost. The next page offers my interpretation of each verse when integrity is gained and lost. May you discover areas where integrity shines and also needs God's help to gain ground in your life.
